WILL SEEK ALMS FOR NEEDY WOMEN

Permission having been granted them by Mayor George Ainslie, the officers and duly authorized agents of the Home for Needy Confederate Women will solicit contributions tomorrow for the maintenance and support of the institution in which needy wives, daughters and sisters of Confederate soldiers live.

The home, which is located at 3 East Grace Street, has no support other than that which the public gives it, except an annuity of $500 from the city. The State gives nothing, and its small stipend must be applied by private generosity if it would fulfill its purpose.

Mrs. A. J. Montague, president of the institution, received permission from Mayor Ainslie a week ago to use the streets and all public buildings to solicit contributions, and tomorrow a small army of devoted women will fare forth into the busy thoroughfares with buttons and boxes. The response in times past has been generous, and the women who will have the matter in charge believe that there will be the same generosity exhibited to-morrow. The most picturesque character in the women's home is Captain Sally Tompkins, the Angel of the Lost Cause, who received her commission as captain at the hands of President Jefferson Davis. There are others whose devotion to the cause was equally strong and unselfish and need have forced them to depend on the charity of those who are able to give.

SEVEN TO CELEBRATE

Members of Police Force to Observe Their Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their election to the police force, seven members of the department will give a banquet in the Jefferson Hotel on Wednesday night, and, with quip and jest and a reminiscence story of the days that are gone, enjoy themselves about the festive board.

On that day—October 1, 1888—twenty-five years ago, sixteen men were elected to the force. Six of them have answered the last roll, and three of them have been retired. Those now in active service are: Major Louis Werner, Sergeants J. E. Martin and R. L. Shumaker and Policemen W. G. Kuhn, C. J. Folkes, J. M. Sale and J. H. Huijter. They have invited to be with them the members of the Board of Police Commissioners, Mayor Ainslie and a few others who have been closely identified with them.

The banquet will be the first of its kind in the history of the department, and will make one more of the memorable occasions in the lives of these seven.

POISON IS TAKEN THROUGH MISTAKE

George A. Moore, Sr., May Die From Mixture Meant for External Application Only.

HIS CONDITION CRITICAL

Remains Unconscious, While Three Physicians Use Heroic Methods to Save His Life.

George A. Moore, Sr., fifty-eight years old, of 3112 Hull Street, Swansboro, through mistake, it is assumed, early last night swallowed more than an ounce of a poisonous mixture intended for external applications, and is in a critical condition. He is under the care of Dr. R. C. Hooker, who was in attendance within a few minutes after the poison was taken, and to whose heroic efforts Mr. Moore owes what chance he has of recovery.

Mr. Moore, who lives with his son, George A. Moore, Jr., was in his room when the drink was taken. The son started upstairs to call his father to supper, when the elder man staggered out of his room, and, after speaking a few words, fell to the floor unconscious. Dr. Hooker, who lives directly opposite the Moore home, was hastily summoned. While he was working over the patient, hurry calls were sent for Dr. E. T. Rucker, of South Richmond, and Dr. J. G. Loving, of Woodland Heights. Both responded, and arrived three-quarters of eight o'clock. They assisted Dr. Hooker until after it was seen that nothing further could be done. It was said that if Mr. Moore lived through the night, his chance of recovery would be good.

Bottle Like Several Others. The bottle containing the poison, which was a mixture of carbolic acid, turpentine and kerosene, was exactly like several others in Mr. Moore's room, and it is thought that he picked up the wrong one, and, without pouring the liquid into a glass, took several swallows. His mouth and throat were severely burned.

None of the family was near Mr. Moore when he took the poison. Barely able to talk, Mr. Moore whispered that he thought he had taken something he should not have taken. Before the son could reach him, he toppled over unconscious, and remained in that condition all night.

Mr. Moore is a boss rider in the boiler department of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works, on Belle Isle. He has lived in Swansboro for a number of years, and is one of the best known men in the community.

SAY SOFT DRINKS MADE GIRLS ILL

Proprietor of Confectionery Is Arrested After Father Calls Upon Police to Act.

Four girls became violently ill last night at 6:30 o'clock immediately after taking soft drinks in the confectionery store of Mary Simon, 1509 West Cary Street. Dr. H. W. Randolph, who was later called to treat them, said they showed symptoms of having been drugged. The Simon woman, who had prepared the drinks, denied that they contained anything other than the usual sirups. She was arrested by Bicycle Policemen Reid on a warrant sworn out by W. E. Bowles, father of two of the girls, of 2118 West Cary Street, charging her with laboring at her trade on Sunday.

Shortly before 12 o'clock Mr. Bowles notified police headquarters of the affair, and Reid was sent to make an investigation. At the home of Mr. Bowles he found the latter's two daughters, Adele and Mary Bowles, fifteen and seventeen years old, and Emma and Mary Martin, nineteen and seventeen, of 2112 West Cary Street, just recovering from their peculiar attack. They told of visiting the confectionery, as they had previously done, and drinking the beverages. Immediately, they said, they became ill and hurried home.

When Reid went to the store the woman told him she had thrown away the rest of the sirup which had been used in preparing the drinks for the girls. Ben Simmons, of 920 West Clay Street, informed the officer that he had taken a drink made from the same sirup about the same time the girls were in the place, and he had felt no ill effects.

Mr. Bowles insisted that the woman be arrested, and Magistrate Parris was summoned. After he was informed of the facts in the case, he decided that the only charge on which she could be held was that of Sunday selling. A warrant to this effect was sworn out, and she was taken in custody by Reid. She was taken to the Second Police Station and afterward bailed for her appearance this morning in Police Court.

The girls responded promptly to the treatment administered by Dr. Randolph, and it was later said their condition was not serious. Reid said that he was told by the physician that what the girls drank evidently contained something foreign to the usual sirups served at fountains.

Alexander Ballantyne Asks Police to Help Locate Them in Richmond.

The climax of a family elopement from Jamesburg, N. J., is promised for Richmond, according to dispatches received last night from New York, for a mother and daughter, accused of taking part in a double run-away, are said to be living here now. Armed with warrants sworn out last week in the New Jersey village, where the father of the woman, Alexander Ballantyne, is said to be on his way to Richmond.

It was learned that Ballantyne was in the city about a week ago, and conferred with Chief of Police Werner and Captain J. E. McManis, with the request that his wife and daughter be located. He was said to have been in the city for the arrest of the mother and daughter were sworn out and the matter taken up officially through the usual police channels. Ballantyne was informed that the local police were powerless to act unless warrants for the arrest of the mother and daughter were sworn out and the matter taken up officially through the usual police channels. Ballantyne was informed that the local police were powerless to act unless warrants for the arrest of the mother and daughter were sworn out and the matter taken up officially through the usual police channels.

Ballantyne is in the city now, I am not aware of the fact," said Captain McManis last night. "If the New Jersey police see fit to ask this department to assist, we will, of course, do so."

They Took Cash.

When Ballantyne found his wife and daughter gone, he also discovered that $700 in cash and jewelry valued at $2,600 were missing. Also the clerk at his hotel, the principal one in Jamesburg, was absent. Eugene Keenan, is alleged to have eloped with Mrs. Ballantyne. Arthur Smith, twenty years old, star pitcher of the Jamesburg Baseball club, is alleged to have eloped with the daughter.

Ballantyne accuses his wife, who is forty years old, and a grandmother, with bigamy and embezzlement. He preferred the same charge against Keenan, also forty years old. His daughter, who was a church worker and the village belle, and Smith, he charged with embezzlement.

One of the curious phases of the case is that when Mrs. Ballantyne left home, she not only took her daughter, Mary, but two other children, who have not yet reached their teens.

Telegrams concerning the elopement stated that word was received in Jamesburg from the daughter and the ball player, in a letter the latter sent to his father. This, it was said, was to the effect that he had married Mary Ballantyne in Philadelphia, and was living happily in Richmond. Whether Mrs. Ballantyne, Keenan and the two children are in Richmond is not known.

SPENCER FOUND SOUND AND SAFE

Aged Citizen Located Below Seven Pines and Returned to His Home.

G. L. Spencer, seventy-three years old, the Confederate veteran who was reported missing from his home, 11 West Marshall Street, on Saturday, turned up safely yesterday morning, much to the relief of his relatives. It appears that Mr. Spencer left the city on Friday afternoon with the intention of walking to West Point, where he has a son.

Late Saturday night he was found wandering below Seven Pines by Guards of the Poor Graves, of Henric County. The old man told Mr. Graves his name, and the latter, having seen published reports of his absence, took charge of him and cared for him until yesterday morning, when he accompanied him to Richmond and turned him over to his daughter, Mrs. T. L. Cavan.

Mrs. W. C. Catts, another daughter of 15 South Second Street, said that since a serious illness, last summer, her father had been mentally afflicted. For some time, she said, he had been expressing a wish to go to West Point, and she was certain that he left home with that object in view.

CALL NEW RECTOR TO GINTER PARK

Rev. F. E. Warren, of Meade Memorial Episcopal Church, Will Go to St. Thomas's.

Following the regular services yesterday morning, the congregation of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Ginter Park, ratified a call issued by the vestry to Rev. F. E. Warren, rector of Meade Memorial Episcopal Church, South Richmond. Mr. Warren was approached by the vestrymen on Thursday afternoon and tentatively agreed to accept. His resignation as rector of Meade Memorial Church was sent in to the vestry of that church on Saturday, and will be acted upon at a special congregational meeting tomorrow night.

Mr. Warren has been with Meade Memorial Church for more than two years, and has had a successful pastorate. He has done much to advance the interests of his congregation, and it was with regret that the announcement of his decision to leave was received yesterday. Several months ago he decided to accept a call, but was persuaded to remain. Since taking up his duties in South Richmond, Mr. Warren launched a building campaign, and a considerable sum in cash and pledges was secured for a new building. A site was purchased.

St. Thomas's Church was used for the first time in May. Mr. Warren will be its first rector, although Rev. Frank W. Kidout, who occupied the pulpit when it was a chapel, officiated for several months until he accepted another call. The building was completed in May at a cost of $25,000. It is built of Chesterfield granite, and is located at the corner of Hawthorne and Walton Avenues.

Mr. Warren will begin his new duties on the first Sunday in November. His new charge is in the Diocese of Virginia, which will necessitate his resignation as secretary of the Social Service Council, which is the Diocese of Southern Virginia, in which Meade Memorial Church is located.

"ISH GEBIBBLE," SAYS GIRL, JABBING JOE DOPE'S EYE

Henrico County Farmer-Philosopher Starts to Read About Harry Thaw, but Gets Tangled Up With Eighteen-Inch Turkey Tail in Young Woman's Hat.

"When I drop my nickel in the box in the pay-as-you-enter-and-swear-as-you-leave cars, I pay for reading privileges as well as ride privileges," said Joseph Dope, last night in a manner which served advance notice that he was about to utter a beautiful man-size grouch. "When I sit down in my seat to read the 'agents wanted' and business opportunities, I don't get a pleasant-tail feather stickin' in my eye or tickling my Adam's apple."

"It's a shame, and I don't care whose feelings I hurt. I'm naturally kind to women, and I got a daughter thirty-nine years old, goin' on forty, which is the apple of my eye. But when a girl sits down in front of me with an eighteen-inch feather stickin' due back-wards or sideways, straight for my eye, I gotta kick. Eighteen-inch girldies is all right; they save shirtwaists and laundry bills—but pheasant tails and buzzard feathers which swing straight out like railroad semaphore lights too much, fashion show or no fashion show."

"Here I take a Broad and Main car yesterday for a little ride to the park, expectin' to spend twenty minutes readin' about Harry Thaw. I get down the car, and as I'm leavin' I lean out of his bathroom window in the railroad presidents' suite in the Concorde, and I says 'continued on page eleven,' and I find my seven after fightin' two minutes to keep the pages together, and I get ready to read what he said to the girls on the lawn, when bing! the midrib of a turkey feather hits me in the eye and everything this red."

"I know the girl didn't mean to do it, and then long feather stick-outs is all the rage, and all that. So I says, 'Beg pardon,' and she says, 'Sure,' and I forget the turkey tail and begin again."

"I turn over to the classified pages, which I read every Sunday, because you never know when fortune may chance on your door. I trail along and read about the fellow that made $100,000 in two years in the mail-order business, and will give his secret for $5, and then I hit the guy that says anybody can make $50 a week raisin' mushrooms in cellars. Pretty soon I see where a big corporation wants a man with executive ability for $5,000 a year. That's my size, and I lean over to fix the address, when bing! the turkey tail hits my other eye, and things are green."

"You'd-a thought that was enough to put my temper on the friz. But no, wipe my eye with my handkerchief, and say, 'I beg your pardon, lady, your stick-out and my eye kinda don't goe to-day. It seems,' meanin' to be polite. And she says—well, what do you think she says?"

He asked it vindictively and with every indication that the manly memory that she said rangled. He paused dramatically to hear the inevitable question.

"Well, what did she say?"

"Ish gebibble," said Joe, "cany-beatit? She said, 'Ish gebibble!'"

Alleged "Bootlegger."

William Allen, colored, was arrested yesterday by Patrolmen Sweet and Hill on the charge of "bootlegging" liquor.
